Please see the e-mail message below from PA/HO David Nickles which serves as PA's clearance.

I do not foresee that the publication of these two reports will cause any difficulties for the Department of State. I say this despite the fact the both deal with extremely controversial subjects.

The two reports are based mainly on media and ngo reporting that is cited in footnotes. For this reason, the US Government should be able to distance itself from the reports, especially given the author's use of the disclaimer. Both reports deal with their subjects in factual and objective terms, although elements in both the Thai and Burmese governments will still find them annoying, given the criticism of human rights violations. Nonetheless, as the information in these reports is widely accepted and not based on privileged DOS information, I see no reason why their publication should produce any particular problems for the Department of State.

I work independently as a consultant for the Freedom in the World publication. Attached are my drafts on Thailand and Burma that I have submitted to Freedom House, the publisher. These drafts are subject to an editing process by Freedom House, but aren't likely to change substantively. Alex in L recommended that I obtain clearance. Please let me know if there is anything else you need.

Dear Madam or Sir,

I have written a short article that has been offered publication in an academic journal. The article does not concern the work of my office, or even of DoS, directly. It is, however, on a topic of international affairs (though a rather obscure, academic one...). Therefore, I have been advised to seek review/clearance for its publication. I will be publishing it in my personal capacity, listing only my academic affiliation, not my affiliation w/ DoS.

Attached please find the article. Excluding footnotes, it is only about 5 pages long. If I can provide any additional information, please do not hesitate to ask. (And, I apologize in advance if I am sending this to the wrong place for clearance of personal writings!)

Thank you for your consideration - I sincerely appreciate your help!

Hi Minh,

Sorry to hear about the power failure. I reworked the piece and hope it reads better. I tried to incorporate as many suggestions as possible, although I refrained from commenting too much about Afghanistan or Iran as these need whole articles in themselves and are not my areas of expertise. My real concern is that we are not doing enough on the refugee issue. There seems to be the attitude that they will all return once things improve in Iraq. Some may return, but not for a long time and certainly not without a functioning government or until they see what happens after the US withdraws. Most will not. We are creating another Palestinian issue that will come back to bite us in 20 years.

Here 'tis. As I'm not at my desk (due to power failure) and using a laptop, I don't have the tracked changes facility and so have to use this crude cut and paste method - apologies. I hope it makes sense and you're happy with the suggestions. And as they are just suggestions, please take them or leave them as per your wont. Thanks very much for this. It's a strong piece overall.

Regards, Minh

We Should Stay and We Should Go

1. Introduction - By end of August US troops had withdrawn from Iraq as per Obama's drawdown policy...

The opening needs to be punchier, i.e., On 31 August, President Obama officially ended America's occupation of Iraq. Operation New Dawn It would be ideal in the opening paragraphs to have a brief history of the invasion and occupation; a rundown of the costs and benefits; and the controversy surrounding it, etc.

B5

2. There are arguments for staying and arguments for leaving - short par on the pros and cons of each

[REDACTED]

3. Implications for Iraq - self-government, this is the essence of your essay, and should form the heart of your essay

This section is good, just needs to be tightened a bit.

B5

4. Implications for the US

It would be quite good to say a bit about the withdrawal to the US's Middle East policy and its other war, i.e. Iran and Afghanistan. Also, what happens to US's reputation if things fall apart.

5. Conclusion - the final paragraph, as you have it, is very good.

Hi Minh,

Thanks for the suggestions. I would be happy to rework it. Could you do me a favor and send the article back to me with your comments in tracked changes or marked some other way? That is, mark in the text the parts that are hard to follow and/or unclear, as well as the parts you don't want me to change. That way, I can focus my efforts rather than trying to rewrite the whole thing.

Thanks,

Dear [REDACTED]

Many thanks for the early draft. I have had a careful read of it. It needs a bit of reworking. You have good stuff here but the essay as a whole lacks a structure. Maybe this is a result of the length and the complex nature of the subject. As it is though, it doesn't read well and is hard to follow. I suggest using the following structure to organise the various paragraphs under these sub-headings. For example,

1: Introduction - By need of August US troops had withdrawn from Iraq as per Obama's drawdown policy...

2. There are arguments for staying and arguments for leaving - short par on the pros and cons of each

3. Implications for Iraq - self-government, this is the essence of your essay, and should form the heart of your essay

4. Implications for the US

5. Conclusion - the final paragraph, as you have it, is very good.

Would you be able to do this? It would make a big difference. I would be much obliged.

Subject: American Review magazine

I edit a foreign affairs magazine called American Review, which is published twice yearly by the United States Studies Centre at the University of Sydney, Australia. The mission of the magazine and the centre is to widen and deepen Australia's understanding and knowledge of American politics and society. Although it was launched in November last year, it has attracted notable contributors like James Fallows, Rob Shapiro, Steve Walt, Josef Joffe, Bill Emmott, John Ikenberry and Stephen Kinzer.

I read your piece in the August edition of The World Today, "Iraq and the American Pullout: Separate We Must". I thought you articulated very clearly the reasons why America should withdraw from Iraq, and you didn't flinch from setting out the grim scenarios of an Iraq after a US withdrawal. As Australia has also committed troops in Iraq, I thought your piece would make a valuable contribution to the public debate here. Thus I'm writing to seek your interest in revising the said piece for an Australian audience.

Would this interest you? I'd be grateful for any contribution you care to make. Please let me know.

Subject: For PA Clearance: DS Special Agent's Masters Degree Thesis Topic

Diplomatic Security Supervisory Special Agent [] (recently DS Regional Security Officer in Copenhagen) is currently a Master's Degree candidate at the Army Command and General Staff College (ACGS) in Ft. Leavenworth, KS.

He has submitted his Master's thesis project outline for review/clearance, as it will include personal analysis, conclusions, and recommendations regarding today's DS role and capabilities worldwide, including defense against military-style attacks overseas and operation in war zones. The thesis clearly deals with "matters of official concern" as defined by the FAM.

See [] attached "Thesis Prospectus Statement" for specific topics and issues to be addressed. He intends to use only publicly available information "as much as possible." The 9 students and 4 faculty members in his seminar class, where he will discuss his ongoing research and findings, all have at least a USG Secret-level clearance. At the conclusion of the project, however, the ACGS intends to publish all student theses on their public Web site, unless special arrangements are made otherwise.

[] states that his thesis "will not discuss the merits of using contractors... Exact details of physical, procedural, or technical security standards will not be discussed... [and] DS tactics, trainings, and procedures (TTPs) will only be discussed in generalities." Agent [] will spend the next six months researching, analyzing, and writing his thesis.

This will be an academic analysis and assessment of the DS mission in today's threat environment. In consideration of academic freedom and the agent's First Amendment rights, and since nothing beyond Chapter 1 has been written yet, DS has cleared on this first stage of activity. Nothing in the attached first chapter, by itself, appears sensitive or objectionable. DS/PA has asked Agent [] to submit the final complete thesis prior to publication, expected in April 2011.

Dear PA Clearances,

I am sending you a document I would like to submit for 2011 publication in a volume on anthropologists and security/intelligence fields. I already have clearances from ODNI Review, INR and SCA/CEN (Central Asia Desk). I am submitting this in my personal capacity and have included a statement indicating this does not represent USG views, etc. There shouldn't be any issues. I requested and received clearance from the Directorate of National Intelligence because the piece discusses the unclassified research I conducted as a 2008-09 ODNI Exceptional Analyst Fellow. Subject: CEAUSSIC casebook project

[REDACTED]

It's been a while. I hope this finds you well and enjoying the early summer.

I wanted to touch base with you about the possibility that you might be interested in contributed to a project I've been developing with three other colleagues (see attached proposal), which grew out of the work we did together as members of the AAA's Ad Hoc Commission on Anthropology's Engagement with the Security and Intelligence Communities (CEAUSSIC). If you would like some further detail on CEAUSSIC's work, check out:

<http://www.aaanet.org/cmtes/commissions/CEAUSSIC/index.cfm>.

The present project is a "casebook" of sorts, and we are currently soliciting case contributions from anthropologists situated in a variety of circumstances with respect to the security sector, broadly conceived, and asking them to reflect on the particulars of their "practice" in this arena. Our goals are several fold, at once: 1. to capture something of the range of diversity of kinds of engagement with the sector among anthropologists, 2. to explore the circumstances of anthropological practice with respect to security, 3. and to examine new ethical contours of this practice. To this end, we are hoping you might be persuaded to write a case of between 1500-3000 words in length. We hope to collect a total of approximately 20-25 cases, and currently have 15 in hand.

We thought of you as someone who might be able to address a variety of pertinent issues and questions, including but not only: the experiences of an anthropologist who works for an intelligence service, 2. the question of "sources and methods," that is, how you handle the information pertinent to analyses you develop, 3. as well as the circumstances -- ethical, methodological, practical, anthropological -- of what it means to be an "analyst." On the last, you might be further interested in a short piece of mine on "anthropology and analysts, FYI, found here:

<http://blog.aaanet.org/2009/06/08/ceaussic-anthropologists-and-analysts/>.

To bring you up to date, we currently have a book contract in hand from Left Coast Press, which has expressed a high level of enthusiasm and support for our project. We're excited, and our timeline is to deliver a complete manuscript to Left Coast by December of this year. For this reason, we are working actively through the summer months, both to fill out our case roster and to work with our case authors on the individual cases we already have.

I've also attached some materials, which should offer a clear context for the project in its latest and final incarnation: 1. the proposal we successfully used with publishers (which provides the most up-to-date discussion of what we hope to achieve with this project), 2. a sample case which we like very much and which we are thinking of as an exemplar of the general kind of form we hope all our cases will take (if details of each case will of course be different), and which might be useful for your own case write-up, 3. as well as a set of updated guidelines for case writers, which might also be helpful in the write-up.

Ideally, we would like to have all cases in hand by no later than the end of August (if not sooner). Let us know if you might be able to do this for us or not, and/or if you have any questions or concerns about the project. We're happy to discuss.

Best,

Rob

PA (and Lisa): Are my Iran/North Korea paper (submitted July 7) and related Executive Summary (submitted July 20) cleared? Based on Lisa's last correspondence, it appeared I had PA clearance on the paper, but still need that on the related Executive Summary. PA has had this for a while now. If there are any questions I can clear up, please have someone email me. We are eager to go to press. Regards.

I am the secondary author on the attached article, which is under review for possible publication in the International Journal of Transitional Justice, an academic journal, and which I respectfully submit for your clearance. My co-author, [redacted] of Arizona State University, is the primary author, and he conducted all B6 the interviews, as we have duly noted in the footnotes. Please review for clearance at your earliest convenience. Following my attendance at the March conference at the Chatham House in London, I was asked to submit an article to the Chatham House "World Today" on the withdrawal of US combat troops. This is the draft that was accepted for publication in July/August.

I have already noted a few mistakes: four instead of a five year term, and a run-on sentence. Also need the disclaimer.

As there is a somewhat tight editorial turn-around, I would appreciate it if this could be reviewed at your earliest convenience.

Thinking a bit more about this [redacted] it might be worth focusing on the bigger picture as the military pullout begins: Who are the winners and losers in Iraq and internationally? What about the Iraqi people, the US, and the military come to that?

This might help avoid the danger you identified of things changing on the ground in Iraq with a more micro focused view.

Very much look forward to your article,

My colleagues in the Middle East Programme here at Chatham House suggested you might be interested in writing a brief analysis of how Iraq is going to look as the US begins its troop drawdown in August.

I'm hoping to run it in the August/September edition of The World Today magazine to brief readers on developments to expect.

Our readership is a general one, so I'd be looking for a broad analysis for the general reader making sense of the changing military balance and the bewildering complexity of Iraqi politics.

Most of our articles are either 1100 or 1500 words in accessible journalistic style. You can see an electronic version of the latest magazine at www.theworldtoday.org Copy would be needed in around two to three weeks.

Very much hope the idea appeals,

All the best,

Graham

Greetings:

I am a State Department employee doing a Council on Foreign Relations Fellowship for the year. The attached short policy briefly will be published by Brookings in connection with a conference they are holding in the beginning of August.

In terms of who should clear, I would suggest someone from the Policy Planning staff—perhaps Elliot Repko; and someone from F staff—Peggy Hoyle would be a good person. Shouldn't be a difficult clearance—there's a fair amount of consensus on the issues covered in the brief, and nothing (that I know of) would be construed as inconsistent with any of State's policies.

Please let me know if there are any questions. [] I need the clearance by the end of next week (i.e. Friday, B6 July 2). Earlier would be great.

Regards,

RELEASE IN PART B5, B6

PA clears your novel with the proposed disclaimer:

This book is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places and incidents are the product of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously. Any resemblance to actual events, locales, or persons, living or dead, is coincidental. The views expressed herein are the author's own and not necessarily those of the U.S. Department of State or the U.S. Government.

However, you do use one real name and a real person's circumstances in your work of fiction. On page 71, you use Ambassador April Glaspie's name and experience in Iraq – and she is not a fictional character. So there is a discrepancy with stating in the disclaimer that "names, characters..." "are the product of the author's imagination..." You will either have to change the disclaimer or change Ms. Glaspie's name and circumstances in the novel. Also, you may want to discuss this matter with your publisher and legal counsel.

I was told by L/Ethics Chip Brooks that I need to run this by PA. Is there someone I can talk with or just I just send and wait one month for a reply or non-reply?

The book does not relate to my official duty in any way. This is a historical fiction based in Sudan.

However, the content does have some current political climate stuff (non fiction) and does involve fictional characters working for the USG. As currently laid out, it is about 250 pages, but most of this is fictional or involves past history.

I think your best bet is to contact L/Ethics. They should be able to tell you what you need to consider in doing this. There used to be some clearance requirements involving PA but I don't think they are as rigorous as they used to be.

I have a historical fiction that I am about two weeks away from sending to a publisher. Is there anything in particular I have to do to receive clearance of some type from the State Department. Whom should I talk with about this.

EUR-Press folks, below is language that we have been asked to clear for inclusion in the Cambridge thesis of B6 an employee of the New Zealand Foreign Ministry. Although it is not for publication, seems like we should clear any comments on the record with regard to Afghanistan, or ask that the comments not be attributed. Is there an actual policy for theses?

Alison has done fact checks and replaced words like "surge" with "uplift" already. Thanks, Rebecca Greetings. I am a Department of State Foreign Service Officer currently on a Una Cox Fellowship at Harvard's Kennedy School of Government. I want to contribute an article for web and hard-copy publication at the US Army's Peacekeeping and Stability Operations Institute at Carlisle, Penn. The article focuses on my experiences 2008-2009 as a Team Leader of an embedded Provincial Reconstruction Team in Iraq. I'd appreciate the Department's clearance of the attached draft before I submit it to the editors.

Please let me know if you need more information or have questions concerning this article. Many thanks,

It gives me great pleasure to congratulate you on the acceptance of your essay and to invite you to participate in the 2010 Winter Symposium at the National Defense University.

We received a large number of outstanding essays making this launch a great success.

With so many excellent entries it was exceedingly difficult to select which essays to include, but I am happy to inform you that yours was amongst the strongest contenders.

Details on participation, dates, and locations of the symposium will follow.

In the interim, congratulations again and thank you for helping making the inaugural competition a great success.

If you have any immediate questions, please feel free to e-mail me at joshua.huminski@ypfp.org.

Hi [REDACTED]

I have attached an edited copy of your submission for Terrorism Monitor. Please have a look and let me know if there are any problems. I have inserted one request for a clarification (marked in red boldface type).

I asked Ramzy to forward some information but I have not heard back from him. I need the following:

1. A one line author's identification to follow the article; e.g. "[REDACTED] is (profession, location)."
2. A short bio of two to three lines for inclusion on the Jamestown website's analysts' page.
3. Your mailing address for payment.
4. Your SSN if you are an American citizen.

Thanks, Andrew

Yes, the manuscript already has been reviewed and cleared within the DS Bureau as of 12/30/09, and the DSS Director advised us he has no objection to its publication, as of that date.

DS/PA would like to verify that PA Clearances has received a book manuscript for review, authored by DS Special Agent [] titled "The Blue Planet: Informal International Police Networks and National Intelligence." The manuscript was prepared in connection with Agent [] NDIC Research Fellowship and apparently would have been forwarded directly to PA by the Defense Intelligence Agency within the past month, as part of a dual-departmental (DoD-DoS) review procedure. DS has finished reviewing the manuscript and is tracking its status. Just seeking confirmation that it has been received for additional review by your offices. B6

Subject: Paper for clearance--conference this weekend

Hi Folks,

The attached paper on Russian civil nuclear exports to Asia is intended for presentation this Saturday in Los Angeles at the 2010 annual conference of the Association for Slavic, East European, and Eurasian Studies. The panel is on Eurasian energy issues and foreign policy. I will not be reading the paper or distributing it. Rather, I will simply present its key points extemporaneously.

The following individuals have cleared on this paper at the policy desks:

- Deborah Miller—Russia Desk
- Sung Choi—China Desk
- Atul Keshap—India Desk

There will not be any press at the session, nor is it recorded. The paper does not include any discussion of U.S. policy at all—its focus is Russian foreign policy. I have included a disclaimer on the paper itself, and will make one before I start the presentation.

Kindly notify me of the status of this clearance by using my home email address: [REDACTED] I leave B6 for Los Angeles on Thursday morning, and will not have access to my Department email addresses after I close up this evening. You can also reach me at my cellphone: [REDACTED] B6

Thank you!

Subject: Request for Clearance to serve as Commentator at Conference

Dear Colleagues,

I have been asked to serve as a commentator at a conference on Asian political development tomorrow, Thursday, June 17 at 1:00 PM. I have been given five minutes to sum up my impressions of two papers looking at the question "Is Russia a Great Power in Asia?" I am including the two papers, my instructions, and the agenda of the conference. There will be press at the conference, but I am told they will not likely bother to attend my session. I am not preparing any remarks—merely offering my impressions of the papers.

Please advise if you have any concerns.

Thanks,
